

There's now a robot bar in Dubai to serve you drinks in seconds

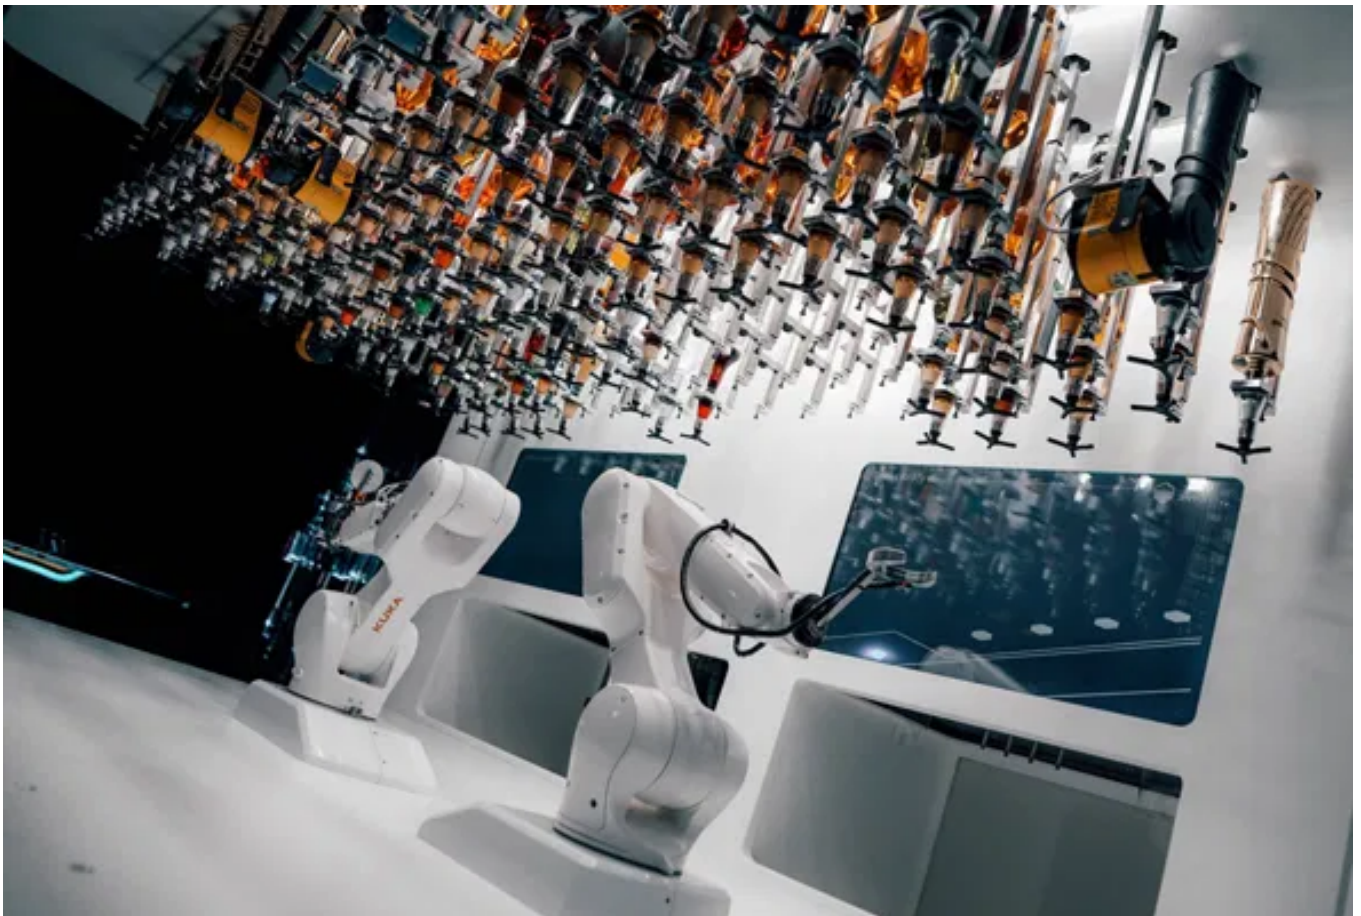

Written by:
Elise Kerr
5th November 2019

Cavalli Club Dubai celebrates its 10th birthday with a futuristic redesign...

If you needed any more reassurance that Dubai is one of the most futuristic places on earth, head to Cavalli Club Dubai – where you can have your drinks mixed and served by a robot. The futuristic concept was launched as part of the nightclub's 10th anniversary celebrations, headlined by Fatman Scoop.

The Italian-made bar, produced by Makr Shkr, is the first of its kind in the region. Using two robotic arms, drinks are poured, shaken and served before your eyes without any human interaction.

The luxurious club has always been known for its extravagant design, but it recently underwent a major renovation with even more shimmer, sparkle and shine added. The new futuristic design also offers exciting concepts such as an augmented reality menu that displays a hologram of each dish.

You'll also find a new VIP area, which comes complete with 24 karat gold flooring, a 40 square metre hydraulic catwalk-style stage, and a -18 degrees celsius revamped ice lounge. Not only that, there's also a new wine cellar, featuring some of the most rare and expensive wines in the world.